

Handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly Arabic or Persian, on a heavily worn and stained surface. The text is arranged in three lines, though the lower portion is obscured by damage and debris. The top line appears to read "Baqaleh" or similar. The middle line contains characters that could be "1342" or "1343". The bottom line is mostly illegible due to the surface condition.